Mr. Birney Will Rigidly and Impartially Prosecute All Offenders.

The application of the Edmunds antipolygamy law, approved March 3, 1887, to this District, is a subject of much thought and comment among atterners. District Attorney Birney said to-day he had not had time to read the opinion carefully, but the law would be impartially enforced. # FAMOUS ACTRESS IS DEAD

Mrs. D. P. Bowers Expired at Her Home in This City.

She Was the Daughter of an Episc pal Clergyman-Funeral From Mr. Frank Bennett's Residence.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, the well-known actress, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning, at the residence of Mr. Frank Bennett, månager of the Arlington Hotel, her son-in-law, with whom she had made her bome in late years. She was taken sick last Friday with laryngitis, but was not considered to be in a dangerous condition until vesterday, when heart failure supervened. Preumonia speedily developed, and death ensued. Mrs. Bowers, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Crocker, was born in Stamford. Conn., March 12, 1830, the daughter of an Episcopal clergyman, who died in her early childhood. Her sister, afterwards Mrs. F. B. Conway, like herself, took to the stage, and also like her became one of the foremost American actresses.

the foremost American actresses.

Mrs. Bower's first appearance was in the character of Amanthis at the Park Theater, New York, at the age of sixteen years. Then she met and married Mr. D. P. Bowers, March 4, 1847, who died ten years later. From New York Mr. and Mrs. Bowers went on their honeymoon to Philadelphia, where they played "A Bold Stroke For a Hus-band." They became very popular in band." They became very popular in Philadelphia, and always considered it their

Mrs. Bowers, especially, was a favorite, and successfully managed after her hus-band's death the Walnut Street Theater and band's death the Walnut Street Theater and Açademy of Mass, with which houses her most notable successes are connected. In 1861 she went to England, repeating her American triumphs. Her first appear-ance was as Julia in "The Hunchback," her best known part, at Sadler & Wells' Thea-ter, London. Later she played Geraidine D'Arcy in "Woman" at the Lyceum, and after two years of successful effort she re-turned to America.

She married Mr. J. C. McCollom, her leading man, and with him as Sir Walter repeated the brilliant engagements of earlier years. Mr. McCollem died about five years ago, since which time Mrs. Bowers had made her home with Mr. Bennett. She filled special engagements up to as late as last year, maintaining her popularity to Friends of Cleveland Who Want the Presidential Nomination.

WOULD TAKE SECOND PLACE

Neither of the Gentlemen Has Anything in His State, Which Is Now Overwhelmingly Republican-Dickinson's Patriotic Speeches Made to Popularize Himself.

Two men of more than ordinary promi-ence in the Democratic party are now engaged in making strenuous efforts to so keep themselves before the public as to secure a perpetuation of official life, being esidents of States in which there is no longer hope of preferment, the party to which they belong having at this time no immediate prospects of future success. Both of these gentlemen have been un-usually fortunate in attaining high positions. They are Senator William F. Vilas of Wisconsin and ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson of Michigan. Both have been Cabinet officers under President Cleveland and both are equally credited with enjoying to the fullest degree his confi-dence.

The supression is almost universal among The supression is almost universal among politicians that Senator Vilas and Mr. Dickinson aspire to the Democratic Presidential nomination, with a willingness to compromise on second place. Each relies on the President to exert his influence in a favorable direction in the event that he should not be selected to make a fourth race for the chief magistracy.

NO FUTURE BEFORE HIM. Mr. Vilas, after being Postmaster General and Secretary of the Interior, and a service of six years in the United States Senate, now finds himself in a State overwhelmingly Republican, the next legislature to elect his successor, and no future before him but private life, unless he can obtain recogni-tion before the next national convention tion before the next national convention of his party.

Mr. Dickinson is placed in precisely a similar position. There has never been a period when Michigan was so thoroughly Republican as at this time. He does not have even a fighting chance of reaching the Senate, the guternatorial nomination would be a fruitless tonor, and the mayorality of Detroit is beneath his dignity, as was a videocal at the two lands and the continual conwas evidenced at the recent municipal con-vention. He, too, must make an effort to become either the head or the tail of the next national ticket or calmly reconcile imself to a permanent abandonment of pointies.

It is believed that with this end in view Mr. Dickinson is availing himself of every opportunity to popularize himself with the masses and to gain a reputation for Americanism and the prosecution of a vigorous foreign policy, which will hence-forth become a more and more prominent feature in the conduct of campaigns and the selection of candidates. CALLING ATTENTION TO BIMSELF.

His utterness against British aggression have been of a character to inspire en-thusiasm and might in the future be of great service in calling attention to him-self us an exponent of that principle of self-defense which has grown to be such self-defense which has grown to be such an important factor in the consideration of political affairs.

Both of the gentlemen in question, in addition to being recognized as close personal friends and confidents of the President, are in accord with him so far as financial and tariff legislation are concerned. At the same time the States of Wisconsin and Michigan are recognized as sound-money States in favor of tariff reform as viewed by the Democratic party. The viewed by the Democratic party. beresy of free silver has made but little beadway in either of these States. Should Mr. Cleveland be neminated for a third term both Mr. Vilas and Mr. Dickin-son would expect him to do whatever might be possible toward having one of them placed upon the ticket as running mate. In the event that his own renomination should appear impracticable or unwise the friends of these gentlemen hope that the power and influence of the Administra tion might be an exercised in their behalf as to cause the Presidential mantle to de-scend upon one or the other of them.

After the opening spurt in stocks the market developed a little weakness, and the subsequently a firmer tone prevailed, due to a reduction in the posted rates for 60-day bills, of 1-2 cent to 4.88. London had a few buying orders in the market, and this was accepted as meaning that the
